

Strategy & Planning

Executive Sessions that Create Momentum

Does your leadership team know what to do?

If we asked each of your top executives what they need to do, today, to move your organization in the right direction, what would they say?

Have they committed to deliver certain outcomes? Have they agreed upon how to work together? How about what priorities create momentum for the year?

“Strategic planning” sounds boring, but if you don’t have it, it gets interesting real quick. You need it, and we know how to help.

Our own executive team facilitates this workshop. Each has decades of experience building and implementing strategic change for dozens of organizations, across industries.

We work with your CEO to customize this workshop for your organization. We identify the objectives you want and scale it to your needs, from a half-day session to multiple-day off-sites. The workshop is never the same from one organization to the next – we tailor it to your business, start to finish.

In four years we doubled sales and increased EBITDA 25 times. When asked how we did it, I always reply...it was the team - we met twice a year with Emerson. They were an integral reason why we generated that performance.

You will leave with...

- A mission and vision for your organization.
- The values you will use to guide initiatives.
- Working agreements that specify roles and outcomes.
- Clarified priorities.
- A one-page plan for the year.
